GDPR or General Data Protection Regulation is an EU regulation that applies to all companies that collect, process, or store any information relating to a data subject. It was introduced in May 2018 after lobbying from the European Parliament. General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) & Why? In the future, having a solid GDPR policy will be a requirement for all companies and startups who handle your data. (And there's even a new FBI warning to that effect!) GDPR: What you need to know Good data security is paramount, and it's even more important for startups and other small companies that handle data of their users. The new European General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) that was introduced on May 25, 2018, will be a pretty big impact on your business. It will require you to have a really strict policy in place, but more importantly, ensure that you follow it every single day. (And not just at the office, but anywhere you handle data of your users) Outdated security can have serious consequences. For example, credit cards and bank accounts are now used to pay in person, and many retailers are demanding your full name, address, and phone number when making an online purchase. If that doesn't sound like a lot to remember, that's because it's not. TrustDumps prepared some mock tests to help you prepare for the upcoming GDPR. This is what you will learn in this Free Video:
